The Best Practice -1 Earn While You Learn

Goal:

1. To create learning environment among the students
2. To provide easy access of learning to downtrodden students
3. To improve the outlook of people towards the institution
4. To generate awareness about values of education.
5. To create job potentiality and possibility among the students.

Context:

Sapatgram College is situated in a rural area where most of the people are leaving under below the poverty line. As such the college provides learning platform to those students who are neither financially well enough nor academically sound. As a result of that the college faces the risk of dropouts. So considering the enormity of imparting education, the college in consultation with the faculties launched the scheme “Earn While You Learn.” The financial assistance is mostly borne by the faculties to those students departmentally who are poor but meritorious.

Practice:

Bearing in mind the context of scheme, the college administration in tandem with the faculties of the institution took initiative in order to encourage poverty stricken students to earn money for their pursuit of education by participating in programmes like cleaning of campus, making campus plastic free and mass plantation. Such students are also used for maintaining college garden. As the college is situated on the bank of river Laska which invariably generates feelings of eco -tourism by setting up a natural view of park. Hence it also yields occasional financial assistance which is used for the benefit of such students. A group of twenty students actively participated in this programme and benefited themselves in pursuing their educational journey.

Problem Encountered: most of the students belonged from the economically backward section therefore financial problem remains the principal hindrance for the execution of the practice. Many of the guardians of the students consider that the economic engagement of the student would hamper the academic practice of the students and therefore they discourage the concept of ‘earn while you learn’

Impact: This practice will bring financial help to the students and it would reduce financial burden of the student’s guardians. This practice will bring self-independence and supplementary income of the students which will help them to carry on their further academic pursuit.

Evidence of Success:

The IQAC Sapatgram College has continuously endeavouring to create awareness among the students and regularly mentoring them through the 'Entrepreneurship and Innovative Cell' on the benefits of the practice. A good number of students now engaged themselves in entrepreneurship and get economic benefit.
